POWER OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The Life of a Combos - The Carloulty Shop-The City of Silence The Telephone Prelic.

The great cattle ranges are being slowly but surely lenced in and covered by homestenders, and the cowboy is losing his occupa-tion. Before this much-talked of and written about individual disappears from view for-ever we will endeavor to caligisten our young e will endeavor to callgliten our young about the real life of a cowboy, giv-following items gleaned from Golden

The most important article is a country's outfit is the "chuck wagon." This is the wagon over which the cook prosides, and it is a common prairie schouner, covered with canvas to keep out the rain. Next to the "chuck" wagon is the pony, which usually costs about $25, and is a virious little minual liable to "buck" every time it is mounted. The owner of the herds supplies each boy with blankets, eaddle, bridle and lasso, but as soon as they have money enough of their with blankers, saddle, bridle and lesse, but as soon as they have money enough of their own they buy these things for themselves. The lesses preferred is made of horse bar, and is flexible and strong. To learn to use the lasso takes from four weeks to six months' constant practice, and then some men never learn. By the way, the cowboy never says "lasso," but "rope," Other essentials of the cowboy outfit are the repeating ridle and the fee shorter.

The pride of the cowboy's heart is his lat.
These are of felt, with broad brim, and cost anywhere from one dollar to ten, twenty, or more, according to the decorations. Sometimes these consist of a leather band, with a clinking brass chain, sometimes gold lace and cord, and sometimes a band of coins. Next to his hat come the cowboy's boots, which are made of the best leather, with long legs and high fuels. A cowboy cares little about his clothes, what they look like, provided they are stout, and he usually wears leather or buckskin trausers. ekskin trouwers or buckskin transers.

The cowboy's fare consists of bread, bacon, beef and coffee: butter and milk are almost unknown to bim. His life is full of bardships and dangers, and the wages he receives are small. The cowboy sleeps in the open air unless he prefers to crawl under the "chuck" wagon in case of rain. Boys who think of becoming cowboys should pender these facts.

Counting Out Rhymes

Counting Out Rbymes.

The following are a few of the many rhymes used by boys to decide who shall take the first innings in many minor games:

Ana, mana, mena, mike;
Barcelona, bona, strike,
Care, ware, frow, frack;
Hallieo, bullieo, wee, we, wack!
This, also, is subject to countless variations;
"Barcelona" becomes "tuscutoms," etc. One form cults in: form ends in:

The Story of a Gray Cut. The gray ent lived on a boat, and had a harming family of three gray kittens. No be thought she would forget to return to one thought she would forget to return to the boat on time; the gain plank was drawn in, the big wheel went round, and pussy came down the dock when the boat went round the point. Just imagine how surprised and delighted the hittens were when the next beat down the river brought pussy, who found her old home as soon as the boat touched the whart. You would think that would be the last time she would go ashore alone. But, alsait the temptation to visit wharf boats was so strong that she got left somewhere on the Indiana side of the Ohio. This trip the steward left the boat, and the kittens disappeared with him.

stoward left the boat, and the kittens disap-peared with him.

Three or four days afterward the "A."
arrived from below, and the gray pussy came up on her. No one knows how she found out that the boat was bound up the river instead of down, for other boats had stopped at that place, but only this one going up to Cincinnati. Puss was soon installed in her old home again; but the kittens were not, her old bome again; but the kittens were not, and she was ionesome. So she went out on the wharf boat and found a poor, foriorn kitten, nearly as large as herself. This she carried in her mouth up into the cabin of the Golden Rule and placed it on a chair, and insisted that it should be noticed and curemed, nor moved the cat until it was supplied.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

Europe are respectively the Norwegians and the Lapps, living in almost the same region. In Africa, also, the diminutive Bushmen and In Africa, also, the diminutive Bushmen and the tallest race of the country, the Kaffirs, are close neighbors." These facts indicate that climate, soil and other physical conditions have but small influence on human stature, and suggest the question whether it is due to social or moral agency. The comparative history of the Lapps and Nowegians indicates that it may be so. The Vikings were always a fighting race; the Lapps certainly are and so far as we know always have been an exceptionally peaceful people, and the Esquimaux, with whom they are so nearly connected, are the same.

an exceptionally peaceful people, and the Esquinaux, with whom they are so nearly connected, are the same.

The Large live on the snow fields of Norway, and the Esquinaux on the hitterest parts of the Arctic regions, just the places to which the wentest would be driven by conquerors who have appropriated the more fertile regions. The consequent hardship and semi-starvation would probably stant the growth of the weaker people, while, on the other band, the conquering warlike race, in the days of hand-to-hand fighting with outsiders, and struggling for chiefrainship would be continually killing off the feeble, and multiplying the big men by the "survival of the fittest" for such conditions of mutual mustir striving.

The City of Silence.

The City of Silence.

The city of Amycke has been distinguished in mythological lose as inaving perished on account of its silence. It was a city of Italy, in Latium, in the vicinity of Fundi and the Genubus Ager. In Anthon's "Classical Dictionary" we have some fragmentary stories relating to it. Amycke was said to inve been of Greek origin, being colonisal from t'e town of Amycke, in Lacouia. Concerning its destruction in Italy strange tales were related. According to some accounts it was infested and finally readered descinct by serpents. Another tradition represents the fall of Amycke as leaving been the result of the silence onjoined by law on its infushmats in order to put a stop to false rumers of instillentiates. Another statement has it that Amyelas was one of the most ancient cities of Lacomia, a short distance to the southwest of Sparta. It was founded long before the arrival of the Dorians and Heraelidae, who conquered and reduced it to the condition of a small hows. It was, however, compicuous, even in Pansanias' time, for the number of its temples and other cities, many of which were 'incliny adorned with scaliptures and other works of art. Its most celebrated structure was the temple of Amyelasan Apollo.

The not impossible to hear a whisper a furloug's distance, it having been already done, and perhaps the nature of the thing would not make it more impossible though that furloug should be ten times multiplied. And though some famous authors have affirmed it impossible to hear through the thinnest plate of Muscovy glass, yet I know a way by which it is easy enough to hear one speak through a wall a yard thok. It has not yet been thouroughly examined how far octosousticous may be improved, or what these ways those not a force of these ways those not performed. It has not yet been thouroughly examined how far octocousticons may be improved, nor what other ways there may be of quick-ening our hearing or conveying sound through other bodies than the air, for that is not the only medium. I can assure the reader that I have, by the help of a distended wire, propagated the sound to a considerable distance in an instant, or with as seemingly quick a motion as that of light, at least incommunable sayifer than that which at the comparably swifter than that which at the same time was propagated through the air, and this not only in a straight line or direct, but one bended in many angles.

Sulphur Fundgation.

Fundgation by the burning of sulphur is the most common method employed by boards of health in the disinfection of apartments in which contagious disease has existed, and the clothing worn by the patients during their fillness. In an address delivered by the distinguished chemist, Dr. E. Souibb, attention is called to the fact that there must always be an abundance of watery vapor in the room to be disinfected; otherwise the sulphurous acid gas generated by the burning of the sulphur is not an efficient disinfectant. The same is true of chloring gas when used for disinfecting purposes.

The Vice President's Power

The Vice President's Power.

The constitutional presiding officer of the United States senate is the vice president, who has no voting power except in case of a tie vote. In the absence of the vice president the senate elects one of its members as president pro tem, who performs the duties of the vice president, but is not disqualified to do any and all of his sematorial duties, including the right to vote upon all measures brought before the senate. While the right to vote upon all measures brought before the senate. While the right to vote upon all measures belongs to the president pro tem of the senate, it is but seldom exercised, for obvious reasons.

An attractive method of club swinging for ladies is one intended to do away with the drudgery of merely imitating certain club swings. A musical principle is involved. Certain swings are looked upon as elemen-tary, like the notes of the scale in music, and by combining these a variety of complex swings are made. These elementary swings are represented by symbols called notes. When these are written one reads and swings, producing the movements they indicate. producing the movements they indicate,

The Revolution Complete.

The Revolution Complete.

Twelve menths ago public opinion was decided as to the merits of the various advertised medicines for coughs and colds. All doubts upon this important subject seem to be now at an end. The unparalleled success of "Hade's Honey of Horehound and Tar" has settled the question. It is in evidence that in upwards of five thousand cases of lung and throat complaints it has not failed in a single instance to effect a cure. The result is a demand for the article that has no precedent in the history of propritary medicines. Sold by all druggists. Givest saving by buying large size.
